

Turning Staffing Challenges into Student Opportunity

With Imagine Edgenuity® and Imagine School Services, West Park Charter turned a staffing challenge into a sustainable, flexible model that supports students, caregivers, and educators alike.

A young man with curly hair, wearing a maroon shirt, is looking at a whiteboard. The whiteboard has some diagrams and text on it, including "FACS" and "W-V=cos".

When staffing challenges threatened instructional time, West Park Charter Academy realized the need for a new approach. The school's charter model brings students in grades 9–12 to campus for just one hour a week, making every in-person touchpoint important. But hiring single-subject teachers proved difficult, and teacher absences left students without the critical instructional support they had traveled to receive. That all changed when they implemented Imagine Edgenuity and Imagine School Services.

Reliable instruction in the face of staffing pressures

Following a successful one-semester pilot of Imagine Edgenuity, West Park moved ahead with a three-year partnership, combining Imagine Edgenuity's flexible online coursework and Instructional Services teachers with the support of its on-site staff. Through the partnership, students can access courses at any time, empowering them with a newfound independence.

Operationally, it's been amazing because we no longer have to worry about teachers being here and our kids missing their classes.

New opportunities through flexible learning

Since implementation, West Park students have responded well to the flexibility Imagine Edgenuity provides. On-site teachers continue to monitor progress and support struggling learners, but the platform gives students room to thrive and self-motivate. Cassandra recalled one student who took the initiative to set a daily alarm to ensure she never missed time in her courses.

The partnership also provides students with the opportunity to accelerate at a pace that fits their needs, creating new pathways to early graduation and college-level coursework through AP offerings.

A collaborative approach to student success

The partnership has strengthened the connection between students, families, and educators. While West Park staff continue to meet with students, Imagine Learning teachers provide an additional layer of support and communication. Caregivers can also log in to view coursework and progress, giving them greater visibility into their child's learning and more opportunities to help keep them on track.
